DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wong et al (6206695). Wong shows an apical end 212 having an opening angle of approximately 6 degrees and a decreasing successive cone 210 having an opening angle of approximately 2 degrees, Fig. 17, column 17, lines 29-53.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wong et al (5855479). Wong shows an apical end 212 having an opening angle of approximately 6 degrees and a decreasing successive cone 210 having an opening angle of approximately 2 degrees, Fig. 17.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wong et al (6206695) or (5855479). The Wong references teach that it is known in the art to use a length of 16 mm, see Fig. 1. To use this length for the instrument of Wong is an obvious matter of choice in the length of the known instrument in order to best work in a root canal.

Priority

Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Europe on September 4, 2000. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the above application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed November 3, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that Wong is directed to a step back procedure, and that the present invention is an improvement over that procedure, and therefore, is patentable over Wong. The argument is disagreed with because all of the actual claimed features being shown, arguing the disclosed differences cannot overcome the applied rejections. Further, it is noted that in the present invention, the root canal procedure is accomplished in two phases, the first phase being the so called step back procedure, the crown down procedure, or a third method of using several conicities, [0004]-[0005], and a second phase of preparing the apical region, [0006]. The present invention goes on to state that the instrument, according to the invention, is adapted to permit the dental practitioner increased working comfort in the second phase of shaping the canal, namely flaring the apical region, [0010]. Because the present invention is directed to improving the second phase, and because the step back procedure is one of several choices for the first phase, the teaching of Wong to use the step back procedure does not teach against the present invention, and therefore, does not obviate the reference as proper prior art.

Conclusion

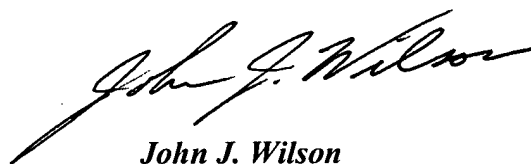

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
